PIANO RECITAL AT SLATER HALL

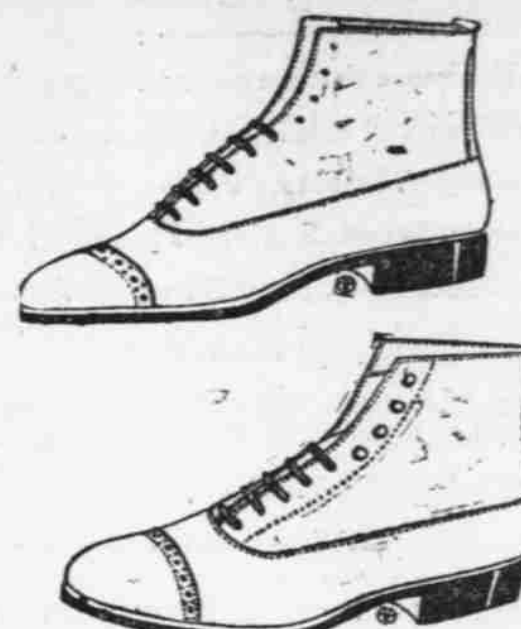

Appreciative Audience Heard Miss Margaret Jamieson, Niece of Archibald Mitchell—Mrs. Raymond Osborn, Soprano, Assisted in Programme.

Our local good fairy who has provided us with so many musical treats in years past, again waved her wand over Slater Hall on Friday evening and conjured up a most delightful concert. Everybody eagerly accepted Mr. Archibald Mitchell's invitation to a piano recital to be given by his niece, Miss Margaret Jamieson, assisted by Mrs. Raymond Osborn, soprano, and both hall and annex were entirely filled with an appreciative and anticipative audience. Most of them remembered with pleasure Miss Jamieson's first visit to us a year ago when she appeared as piano soloist with the New York Symphony orchestra and were quite ready to welcome her in a more extended program. As her first professional appearance was made here, it was a graceful compliment for her to give us also a first hearing of her concert program which she has been preparing since that time.

Mrs. Osborn is not as yet so widely known, though many enjoyed her private recital given here several weeks ago, and she is a near neighbor—Dr. Osborn being one of the faculty of the Connecticut College for Women in New London—will be adopted by the public. Her work shows much musical intelligence and dramatic power. Her accompanist was Frederick W. Lester, who gave his usual perfect work. Miss Jamieson opened the program with a brilliant rendering of Beethoven's Sonata Op. 31, No. 2, giving the four movements an intelligent interpretation and showing her splendid technique and fine tone. Mrs. Osborn followed with a charming rendering of the Aria, "Nou je ne veux pas chanter," from Le Ballet de Sorcier by Nicolas Isouard. Miss Jamieson played two old French compositions—La Bandonne by Comperin and Le Cuckoo by Daquin and then the beautiful Caprice Sur les Aïres de Ballet d'Alceste by St. Saens. Three compositions by Chopin—Nocturne Op. No. 2, Etude Op. No. 1 and Scherzo in B Flat Minor rendered in a manner which elicited much enthusiasm. A group of songs by Mrs. Osborn included Schubert's Ungeduld, Debussy's Romance, Mrs. Beach's The Year's at the Spring and Pietro Fiorillo's April and were warmly applauded. As encore number she gave an artistic rendering of the Old English song, Mary Gray. Allendale. An interesting group of piano pieces given in artistic style by Miss Jamieson concluded the program. These were Brahms's Capriccio, Op. 76, No. 2, Liszt's Etude in D flat "Un Sospiro," Paderewski's Intermezzo, Op. 10, No. 3, and Scherzo in F major, Op. 10, No. 3. Before that she studied with Joseffy, after graduating from the Oberlin Conservatory. As a final selection she gave the encore number, Valse Caprice, by Paderewski. Many floral tributes were accorded the two artists.

WHEN ENGLAND CEDED HELIGOLAND TO GERMANY.

Kaiser at That Time Spoke of It As a Butchery in the Sea, and Such It Has Been Made.

In view of the importance that it attached to Heligoland in the present war, it is interesting to note the following reference that was made to the transfer of that island, now a German stronghold, by the Leeds (England) Mercury of August 20, 1890:

The formal cession of Heligoland to Germany took place at half-past three on Saturday afternoon. Herr von Boetticher, Minister of State for the Interior, accompanied by Privy Councillor Lindau, arrived from Hamburg in the morning, being followed by the German training-ship Mars and the war-vessel Victoria from Wilhelmshafen, under the command of Admiral Hollman, who landed a battalion of Marines. Herr von Boetticher was met on the landing-stage by Governor Barkly and his officers, all in full uniform, together with the principal inhabitants of the island. As the German representative set foot on land, a salute of seventeen guns was fired. Herr von Boetticher was then escorted through the gaily beflagged lower town up the steep flight of steps leading to the Oberland to the Government House, where the formal ceremony of transfer took place, and Mr. Barkly read the article of the Anglo-German Agreement regarding the cession of the island to Germany. The German flag was then hoisted alongside of the Union Jack, and as the colors were run up a combined salute of twenty-one guns to each flag was fired by the British and German war-vessels. The Imperial Standard floated above the Union Jack until sundown, when both flags were hoisted down. From Sunday morning the German flag alone has been hoisted. After the ceremony, Governor Barkly was in his turn, escorted to the harbour by Herr von Boetticher, whence, amid a salute of seventeen guns from the British and German vessels, he embarked on board the Admiralty yacht Enchantress. At four o'clock on Saturday a grand dinner was given by Herr von Boetticher in the Kurhaus, at which covers were laid for forty guests. Captain Geiseler, the new provisional Governor, and Privy Councillor Warmuth, the Civil Commissioner, entered upon their duties immediately upon the departure of Mr. Barkly. Herr Dittman has been appointed Financial Controller for the island.

The imperial yacht, Hohenzollern, escorted by the cruiser Irene, came in sight at ten on Sunday morning, and shortly afterwards dropped anchor in the harbor. A salute was fired by the German squadron, consisting of four ironclad frigates, four corvettes, two dispatch vessels, twelve torpedo boats, and the training ship Mars. A salute was also fired from the shore batteries. The emperor and Prince Henry landed at a quarter to twelve o'clock, and were received by Herr von Boetticher.

the principal authorities, and the captains of the German war vessels. His Majesty met with a very hearty reception from the inhabitants, and immediately proceeded to the Oberland, where divine service was celebrated in the open air. His Majesty then delivered a short address, after which the German flag was hoisted under a salute of half a dozen of the executive and clerical force to New York.

Referring to it editorially the same paper said: A very different opinion of the value or Heligoland is entertained by the Emperor William as compared with the estimate put upon it by Lord Salisbury. When he was defending the proposed surrender of the English premier had scarcely a good word for the island. It was of no importance to us commercially; it had no special attractions as a resort; it was not linked to us by tradition; and it was of no service to us as a defensive outpost. But it is all these things and more, to Germany. The emperor, in his speech on the occasion of the formal transfer, spoke proudly of it as "a bulwark in the sea, a protection to German fisheries, a central port for my ships of war, and a place and harbor of safety in the German ocean against all enemies who may dare to show themselves upon the sea." These remarks read strangely when placed alongside the Lord Salisbury's depreciatory sentences, but there can be no question that the emperor has truthfully estimated the importance of this latest addition to the Fatherland. The transfer of the island to Germany dates from Saturday last, when the English governor gave up possession and the standard of Germany was run up in the place of the Union Jack. On the following day the Emperor William, fresh from his visit to the queen, reached Heligoland, and there was much jubilant ceremony over the event. In accordance with the agreement, all males on the island remain exempt during the present generation from military or naval service, and all property rights acquired under British rule will remain in force.

When the German emperor pays his contemplated visit to Russia he is to be accompanied for the first time in his journeys abroad, by his new Chancellor, General Caprivi. This, of course, has given rise to the belief that the visit will not wholly be one of pleasure, and that business of some kind is meant by the arrangement. Hence the eagerness with which, in semi-official language, the Feesther Lloyd has made haste to declare that no political meaning need be attached to the meeting of the two emperors, and that the presence of General Caprivi at the court of the Czar is for purposes of friendly etiquette. The same journal states it to be likely enough that during the recent visit of the Emperor William to England the guarantees of the existing Anglo-German relations were strengthened, but that in going to Russia he will take with him no program except a hope of impressing the Czar with the conviction that the only aim of Germany is to maintain peace.

Chance for Harmony. Since it does not raise a question of race, religion or politics, everybody can turn in and celebrate Shakespeare's anniversary with the utmost good will.—Rockwell Merrell.
